Brush Your Teeth

It is really important to brush your teeth at least twice a day.

Brushing your teeth gets rid of any food that is around your teeth.

It washes away any sugar that can hurt your teeth.

How to Brush Your Teeth

First, put a pea-sized amount of toothpaste on the toothbrush.

Next, brush the front of your teeth.

Then, gently brush the outside of your teeth and the back teeth.

Brush the insides and tops of all your teeth.

Then, gently brush your tongue.

Finally, spit out any toothpaste that is left and you are finished.

Visiting the Dentist

Even if you have been looking after your teeth, you should go to the dentist regularly for a check-up.

This is what a dentist's room might look like.

Can you tell a friend about a trip to the dentist?

The dentist will look in your mouth and at your teeth to see if there are any problems.

They might use special tools to help them, like this little mirror.

Then, if there are any problems, the dentist can help to fix them.

Food for Healthy Teeth

Having lots of sugar isn't good for teeth as it can hurt them. Some foods have lots of sugar in so we shouldn't eat too much of them.

It doesn't mean we can't eat them at all, just not all the time.

Some foods are good for our teeth as they help to make them stronger.

Wobbly Teeth

The teeth you have at the moment are called milk or baby teeth. As you start to get older, you need bigger teeth and your milk teeth start to fall out. Don't worry, it doesn't hurt – it is meant to happen and it doesn't mean there is anything wrong with your teeth.

You might notice a tooth start to get a bit wobbly. Then, after a few days, it will fall out. They usually only fall out one at a time.

In some families, children may leave their tooth under their pillow or on their bedside table for a tooth fairy.
